

Benefits from Translator's Perspective

- Efficient work by utilizing existing translations: You can e.g. import translations from Microsoft's translation database that contains 12 000 translations in 59 languages. Multilizer also integrates with TRADOS.
- Prevention of accidental breaking of the structure of the translatable files: You can focus on translating instead of verifying, for example, that all HTML tags are preserved.
- Localization of software with no programming skills: You can even make small user-interface modifications to the software without any programming skills or experience.
- Contextual information on the translatable texts: Multilizer's visual preview provides contextual information on the texts you are translating. You can see the context of the text you are translating and make sure your translation is correct also when the native text is ambiguous.
- Enhanced communication with your client: You can include translation-specific comments using Multilizer. Multilizer offers a structured way to pass translation information between you and your client. Thus your work is more efficient and you can deliver better quality.